

I purchase DSL service through my local ISP because they provide such good service. I used to purchase DSL from the phone company but I was very dissatisfied with the quality and speed of service. I am opposed to deregulation of large phone companies in any way that means they would not be subject to regulatory review of their broadband pricing to independent ISPs. Small ISPs are the backbone of the internet and they should not be run out of the broadband business by giant corporations.